ONE of the most successful American bridge players of the last 20 years, Larry Cohen, presents a collection of his favorite personal bridge moments. Using an intimate ‘over-the-shoulder’ presentation, Cohen takes readers through more than 60 deals (no, not just 52!) – deals that are important to him in some way, or technically interesting, or just plain fun. The book’s interactive style allows readers to follow the bidding and play, and even to make their own decisions at key points. Cohen discusses the pros and cons of different options at each critical moment, explaining the reasons for his own choice and why the winning action is also the correct one. Read this book for fun, or study it in depth and learn from it – whichever you choose to do, you will find it hard to put down.

My Favorite 52 was originally published as interactive software, and won the American Bridge Teachers Association ‘Software of the Year’ award in 2005. This is its first publication in book form.

LARRY COHEN (Boca Raton, Florida) won his first National Championship at age 22 and went on to collect 25 more titles before retiring from competition in 2009. Director of the prestigious Bridge World Master Solvers’ Club and a frequent contributor to bridge magazines around the world, he is a popular bridge lecturer on land and at sea. His book To Bid or Not To Bid: the Law of Total Tricks is one of the all-time best sellers on the game. Aside from bridge, his passions are playing golf and watching sports, especially his beloved Yankees.

LINDA LEE (adaptor – Toronto, Canada) is a World Life Master. The author of four previous books, she conducts a popular internet blog on bridge matters at www.bridgeblogging.com.
